There is an unwavering charm about Estepona - starting years back as a small fishing town, it's grown in abundance and now occupies a respectable stretch of the coast linked by the New Golden Mile as its now known. In recent years, Estepona has had some fantastic regenerating boosts with perfect results - a beautifully kept and still traditional Spanish whitewash town, with pedestrianised flower lined postcard quality backstreets. Also, a new theatre, sports grounds, beautifully painted wall murals, and an Orchidarium to name a few. Up next is a new hospital and a fantastic amount of development into some stunning brand-new luxury real estate. Add that to a multitude of kid's parks, bars, shops, cafes, a bustling fun marina that's home to the Sunday market and a choice of clean easy access beaches including Cristo Beach which sits in a cove and is a hidden gem of the area. Neighbouring towns such as San Pedro and Duquesa Port are easily accessed which makes this a great spot to get out and about from. Estepona is also a convenient location for Gibraltar. This really is the ideal location for pure Spanish charm at its best.
